Val,

What Cynthia wrote is OK with me. What would you say regarding the current state of the cap?

I believe that the repairs are needed but they do not currently impact the overall integrity of the cap. Please give up your suggested language. Thanks CAS

Carlos –

We need to provide some context for congressional staffers. For example, would it be accurate to say this:

Attached is a report on the berm at the San Jacinto Waste Pits site (the rock “cap” placed over contaminated soil). The Army Corps of Engineers completed this report for EPA. The report finds problems with the design and construction of the cap and makes recommendations for corrections. EPA will use this report to inform its interaction with the Potentially Responsible Party conducting the repair work. [What is the current state of the cap?] We will keep your office informed as this work progresses.

Please advise.

Gary,

Since the Corps report has been sent to the PRPs, I believe that we should go ahead and release it to everyone, especially the San Jacinto Team that is reviewing site documents.

Cynthia, go ahead and send the report to your political contact as FYI.
Thanks CAS
